Assembly Will Salute Artists
Films Also Conclude Week-Long Festival

An assembly, including entertainment and awards, and movies will conclude U-High's first Arts week, sponsored by the Student Council.

According to Chairman Ellen Beigler, one of the highlights of the week will be tomorrow's assembly 11:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m. Because of the assembly, lunch periods will be changed to 11 - 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 - 2 p.m.

The program will feature songs by the a capella choir directed by Mr. Joseph Gardner, a jazz band performance directed by Mr. Dean Hey, and a Drama Workshop production directed by Mr. John Baarmann.

Among selections the choir will present are: Calypso Serenade, Peasant Dance and All My Fees.

Jazz band will play Blueette, Artistry in Bolero, Take Five and Salt Peanuts.

First-, 2nd- and 3rd-place awards will be presented to winners in each of 11 categories of competition.

They are: jewelry, ceramics and pottery; sculpture; prints; print design; pastels and crayon drawing; oils; water colors; pen and ink and pencil drawings, mechanical drawing; posters; and wood turnings.

Unless a student specified he did not want his project entered, any work on exhibit for Arts week has been entered in the competition.

Judges are: Mr. Robert Erickson, Mr. Herbert Pearson, Mrs. Nolla Weiser, Ellen Beigler, David Avid Yagye, Bill Bradshaw, Deborah McNeil and Emily Kiss

Class Nominees For '67 Court of King, Queen

ELECTING their most popular girl and boy in tomorrow's Thursday, Jan. 26, classes will decide the couple to represent them in the competition for Biphasmal Queen and King. Sophomores will make their nominations again today because of a mixup in some nomimations last week resulting in insufficient ball return. The other classes have made their nominations as follows:

SENIORS, to be featured in graduation groups of the Minnesotans-Jay Canton, Elaine Neuman, Sarah Hirling, Martha Kollman, Barbara Weiss, Fanchon Weiss, David Stein, David Boo­rin, Alan Mentiens, Sam Schmiet, Jim Weiss.

JUNIORS (six girls because of a tie)
- Bobbie Green, Dana Hurley, Gary Bogorski, Jill Schiffer, Alina Spalding, Margaret Wasterback, Bruce Boker, David Levi, Jim Rosenbeck, Mike Steyer and John Wachter.

FRESHMEN (six girls because of a tie)
- Bethy Bergman, Laurie Duren, Gina Heideman, Valerie Leopold, Emily Marn, Linda Strueik, Mark Piltz, Bill Han, Bruce Montgomery, Steve Faller and Doug Swanson.

ARTS WEEK has involved students and faculty in a variety of projects, from concerts to fashion shows to picture exhibits.

REHEARSAL for the recital they have been preparing for their class made the history of music and art are from the days of Beethoven to the present. Mrs. Mary Becker and Mr. Roger Pillet, their contribution to the Student Council's take in the moves. Mrs. Ciara Goettling also help.

Photography, sculpture, art, creative writing, drama and fashion were to be represented in this ode to the arts.

Ellen Beigler agreed to join David as cochairman of Arts week, as it was finally called (Mary Davis also agreed but later had to resign because of the press of school responsibilities). The finished product even included a W.C. Fields film festival.

"Because are arts are becoming more and more popular at U-High," David de­clares, "and more people than ever before are choosing art and music courses, I wanted to establish a special week each year devoted solely to all phases of the arts and crafts.

"The Council hopes to get so many people interested in Arts week that it will become as widely accepted as a Banarival.

David relates that his original faculty encouragement came from the Unified Arts teachers, all of whom agreed they were approved of an Arts week.

As part of the promotional campaign this week, David and Ellen have created Kul­ture Man, who reminds people about the public address system.

"The cost," David informs, "will be $70."

As School recommends this week or next the question of Student Board elections before noon, it has been directed by Student Council President David Boorstin.

The process of elections of Board members will have to be continued for 40 minutes Monday evening so as to decide further action.

Arts Week was Boorstin's Brainchild; Council Hopes To Make It Annual Event

Arts week was the brainchild of one person, Student Council President David Boorstin.

David brought his idea to the Council at a late fall meeting. Though several representatives were not immediately committed to the proposal, it generally was well accepted.

David's plan was to involve as many U-Highers as possible in a week-long festival devoted to the arts.

According to Chairman Ellen Beigler, one of the highlights of the week will be tomorrow's assembly 11:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m. Because of the assembly, lunch periods will be changed to 11 - 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 - 2 p.m.

Dream of 16-Year-Olds Comes True: Driver Education Returns to U-High

It's finally here, the dream of every 16 year old...driver education at U-High.

A driver class formerly offered at U-High for a $60 fee only during the summer. Only by enrolling in a Chicago public school class could a U-Higher get driver education free of charge.

Five years ago, as reported in the November 1 Midway, driver education was offered as a regular course for a nonprofit fee, but only one student signed up.

Principal Willard Congreve said that because of this earlier experience, which indicated the reluctance of parents to pay for driver ed, he felt it unlikely the school again would offer the course during the regular year.

The picture changed, however, when John Block and Larry Samelson learned from a Chicago Vocational school driver instructor that if enough U-Highers were willing to sign up for driver education an instructor could be provided free of charge under new state regulations.

Mr. Sandy Patlak, who has taught driver training here during the summer, explained that originally the state allotted a free driver program to public schools but not to private schools.

Representatives from private schools complained that since their parents paid a public school tax, their students should be entitled to the same program. The state's legislators addressed the bill and now will send an instructor to any private school with enough students willing to sign up.

Mr. Richard Somrek is U-High's instructor. His class, whose first session was Monday, will meet for 12 three-hour sessions on days this week and 2 days this week.

Fifty students were accepted. Seniors got priority and the quota was filled with a random selection of juniors. During the spring quarter, the course may be offered again.

U-Highers who take driver ed can save $40 a year on car insurance. Every statistic compiled shows that students who have completed behind-the-wheel driver education courses have fewer accidents and commit fewer violations than those who have not.

Conference Asks Director Abroad

First American to go to Australia as Guest of Honor to the Conference of Independent School Headmasters will be Lab Schools Director Francis V. Lloyd Jr. The conference recently invited only British administrators.

"This is a double honor for both the United States and the Laboratory Schools," Mr. Lloyd asserts. It is an honor for the United States that an American was chosen and for the Lab Schools that its director was selected, he explains.

Mr. Lloyd will travel throughout Australia for 7 weeks, July 15-September 20, visiting the approximately 75 private boarding and day schools the conference represents.

He also will be keynote speaker at a meeting of the conference August 27 in Launceston, Tasmania.

Mr. Lloyd will fly to Australia by way of Italy and return via the Pacific.

Faculty Views On Teacher Strikes Vary

Should teachers belong to unions and be able to strike when they feel that this step is necessary?

Four U-High teachers were asked their opinions of this issue, newly important to Chicago, whose schools have been threatened by strikes recently.

Social Studies Teacher Philip Erickson strikes where they are necessary. He said that in many schools throughout the country, teachers had no voice in their curriculum or class size, and these rights could be obtained only through unions.

Mr. Robert Erickson, Unified Arts chairman, said he felt that unions were a "good thing" where it was necessary for teachers to improve their conditions, as an in City, which advocated them in extreme cases. And that unions and striking were such communication took place, an institution for teachers, but advocated them in extreme cases.

Mr. Lloyd asserts. It is a double honor for both the United States and the Laboratory Schools, he explains. It is an honor for the United States that an American was chosen for the Lab Schools that its director was selected, he explains.

Mr. Lloyd will fly to Australia by way of Italy and return via the Pacific.

Yearbook Plans Change For Spring Sports; Appear Following Year

Spring sports will not appear in the 1967 U-Highlights, according to Editor Ellen Jarrow. On request of students, the staff decided to follow the lead of most yearbooks and switch to March-to-March sports coverage.

The change was made because February, while the tennis, golf and baseball teams are fielded in the spring.

In previous years the yearbook staff had to guess about team line-ups, wanting records and the outcome of individual games. As a result, sports copy was dull and often in error, Ellen said.

Under the new plan, this year's spring sports will be carried in the 1968 book.

The staff currently is working toward its second deadline, January 25, when the activities and underclass sections will be sent to the printer.

New Speech Committee Hopes To Secure William Buckley, the Rev. Malcolm Boyd

By Norman Altman

"We hope to get William F. Buckley to speak at U-High," says Paul Shumaker, editor of U-High's new student newspaper. In addition to Mr. Buckley, conservative editor of the National Review, the committee would like to bring to U-High the Rev. Malcolm Boyd, the "very prominent," priest, and a representative of the Catholic Interracial council, a Chicago brotherhood organization.

The group is working to arrange for speakers suggested last summer by the House Committee on Un-American Activities (HUAC) after it had taken part in Viet Nam war protests, told a spellbound audience of 50 that "Taking an ideal you don't like and stamping it as disloyal, subversive and un-American" is HUAC's device for combating inquiry about government policy abroad.

Kinosy said he believes public and legislative opinion is turning against HUAC.

Plan Proposes Students Ratify Board Members

Nomination of Student Board members by the Board and their ratification by the student body is a compromise plan proposed by Sophomore Matt Saffold to end a 6-week debate in the Student Council. According to Matt, this plan will incorporate the experience of the Board members with the wishes of students for a voice in the selection of the Student Board.

Board President Mark Kostekoski believes an all-school election for Student Board members would be wise because popularity would become a factor. "Elections are not necessarily take experience or effectiveness into account. Appointments do," Mark asserts.

Some students disagree with this view. "If Board members are elected in the fall and allowed to socialize during the Board meetings all year, they will gain the experience necessary to take over the next year," says Junior Jim Steinbach, who is chairman of a group working for the election of Board by the student body.

Jim has circulated two petitions for that plan. He feels that the compromise proposal will not satisfy those students who want an elected Board.

Fire Drills Await Word From Ordering Marshal

Because the fire prevention bureau has not made clear to the school how and when fire drills are to be conducted, none have taken place this year (up to last Wednesday), asserts Principal Willard Congree.

Dan Meltzer brought up the Student Board's December 9 meet-
ung. The board was discussing placement of fire drill policies in next year's student handbook.

Fire drills by law are required once a month at the initiation of a fire marshal, according to fire prevention bureau sources. It is usual practice in Chicago for principals to hold additional monthly fire drills, a spokesman said.

Mr. Congree states that he has not initiated any of his own drills because he wants an expert fire marshal to be on hand to point out any faults in the drill procedure.

Mr. Congree is planning to initiate his own program of fire drills because of the lack of communication between the school and the fire prevention bureau.

Director of Administrative Services of drills this year at the vicdices Donald Conway says it is usual for the High school to have five drills a year instead of one a month because fire marshals arriving on cold or rainy days do not wish to send students out in un-clement weather.

Dean of Students John Thompson said he did not know why drills have not taken place. Mr. Thompson is responsible for conducting drills not initiating fire drills.

"This tells us about the high ability of problem solving in rats," the MAT commented warily.

Ad Revenue Up, But Lack of Funds Forces Midway Into At Least 3 Four-Page Issues

Four-page editions it had hoped to avoid face the Midway for at least its next three issues, according to Business Manager Ted Bernstein.

The staff wished to avoid 4-page issues in order to load with ads. two editions (an editorial) pages.

Six-page issues provide 4 ad-carrying pages.

"We hope the ad revenue is up this year, we have found the market simply won't support a 6-page paper the whole year," Ted says.

Rat Shenanigans Raffle Pursuers

One white rat may be running loose in U-High.

A MAT assisting Mr. Rich-dardson and a Animal behavior helped the class set up a problem-solving experiment. It involved boarding up half an alfombra with a series of boxes and ladders.

As the rats the rats were placed in the enclosure, however, they ran up into a filler between two cabinets and wouldn't come down.

The MAT spent hours one evening trying to get them down. Of the six, five were recovered over winter vacation but one escaped and is still loose.

Council Serves Wisely

This week U-Highers are enjoying a new innovation: Student Council Arts week. This project provides opportunities for students to exhibit their own work and see works of their classmates, as well as be exposed to new ideas to be appreciated as such.

Arts week is not just important for its own value but for its approach. This year's Student Council has not concerned itself with arguing with the school's administrators but with serving the students, says President David Boorstin.

The Council has increased the activities budget, helped pay off a long-standing debt and changed the school's policy on party admissions. Arts week is the result of a Student Council intelligently working in cooperation with a school administration.

U-Highers Oppose Females At The Front

By Judy Kohn

At a recent conference, U-High students discuss the draft. Anthropologist Margaret Mead stated that everyone-man and woman, bright and dull, healthy and infirm-be drafted.

Under Miss Mead's plan, recruitment might be up 14 for both sexes. Recruits, however, could choose between domestic welfare service or the armed forces.

Many students questioned on Miss Mead's proposal strongly objected to the idea of women fighting (she reported Miss Mead favored women going into the battle, but it is mentioned that she made such a statement).

Some students such as Senior Marlene Ekstein feel that there should be no draft for men or women. "I believe that if men must be conscripted, it should be by women," she reasons.

Some believe that women could be drafted for war relief, dishes, and silverware from the cafeteria in W. Blum, and books from the library in Mr. Brasier, but none of these contributors are available. Adviser Ted Turner said the law has been changed to permit seniors to apply to the University to discuss the draft, which has always been applied to students.

The laboratory Mutants, in its commendable zeal to provide a bold free press requires facts.

As any journalism text will point out, facts must remain as free from editorializing as possible. Editors, as any journalism text will point out, require facts to substantiate opinions. For an editorial to be effective, it must be based on fact. If there is a conflict on statements of opinion, the newspaper staff must research material for facts and gain information from both sides of a controversy.

Here's the Answer

IBM 'Goofed' Transcripts

By Judy Kohn

Why has the guidance department made so many errors on the transcripts? Many students have incorrect transcripts sent out to the colleges that they are applying to.

College Counselor Anita Pisciotta states the main reason for the confusion was that "a lot of the freshmen did not report their grade changes." The IBM mistake, however, did record some grades incorrectly. "Students are being reported to have a 92 in one class and a 5 in another class," she says.

To clear up confusion on university transcripts, the school sent out a notice to all students. Transcripts that are incorrect will be corrected.

Dear Judy,

Can seniors go to Ida Noyes on option?

Dean of Students John Thompson said the school's Ida Noyes recreation hall was off limits even to option holders.

Why can't the freshmen, who are asked to work on all-school parties, attend these parties?

Editorially, an underground journal can serve a useful and healthy role at U-High. The Laboratory Mutants, latest such publication, supplements the Midway by offering the student body a forum for opinions and literary pursuits.

Being a newspaper, the Midway is restricted to presenting opinions only on its editorial page; news pages (including sports and features) must remain free from editorializing as possible. Editorialists, as any journalism text will point out, require facts to substantiate opinions. For an editorial to be effective, it must be based on fact. If there is a conflict on statements of opinion, the newspaper staff must research material for facts and gain information from both sides of a controversy. The Laboratory Mutants, in its commendable zeal to provide a bold free press requires facts.
Test Decides German Student's Future—Matthis
Exchange Student Hopes To Gain Insight Into American Education

By Joel Raven
It's the Abitur that counts in 50 informa Matthias Gutwinski, arrived here last week from Esslingen, Germany. Matthias is the third German student to visit here through the Gregor Heggen and David Batrich.

Abitur that makes the big separation," Matthias asserts.

Student interest groups are also different at the gymnasion. Those interested in biology, for instance, meet one or two afternoons a week with their master (teacher)," explains Matthias. Experimenting rather than socializing is on the agenda.

A student newspaper is published three or four times a year at the gymnasion. It is aimed not with words and sports, but "it is like your Concept," U-High's literary magazine, says Matthias.

While at U-High, Matthias plans to join the indoor track team, learn more about the educational system here and gain some insight on the American way of life.

During his winter-quarter visit he will stay with several U-High families. His present hosts are Mr. and Mrs. Edward McGehee, parents of Senior Peter.

Youth Projects Serve Community

Church Groups Emphasize Involvement

By Carolyn Kent

Despite indications that today's youth is rejecting organized religion, many U-Highers continue to evidence deep interest in the service activities of their congregations.

Religious youth groups in Hyde Park and South Shore share several areas of interest. They are involved in some common projects, present temple or church services, and go on retreats with similar groups.

Liberal Religious Youth of the First Unitarian church, 5650 South Woodlawn avenue, is geared not with by words, but "it is like your Concept," Matthias.

Youthful activity includes social action projects, such as speakers from the John Birch society or VIISTA.

Once a year we present a service to the church on a meaningful topic and we have conferences with LRY's all over the country," Marks says.

Student Tutorial Enrichment Program (STEP) is a project to ben-fit culturally deprived children. Participating in it, among other groups, are the Sinal Juniors of Chicago Sinal congregation, 530 South South drive, according to Junior Elanna Winsberg, Sinal Juiors present services for the temple and make retreats with groups of other synagogues.

"In the spring we invite another group to an interfaith seder dinner," Elanna adds. Young Christian Students is advised by Father Henry of St. Thomas the Apostle church, 3142 South Kimbark avenue.

"One summer ago YCS worked on a great similar to Head Start," says Father Henry, "and they are planning projects along the same line."

Head Start is a preschool program for children of culturally deprived backgrounds.

Baptist Youth fellowship puts its accent on cultural and social activities, according to Maria Genet, a student at Hyde Park high and a leader of BYF at Hyde Park Union church, 5600 South Woodlawn avenue.

BYFers visited Adler planetarium and plan to attend several plays. Three retreats and a workday project are among yearly functions.

United Synagogue youth of Rodefel Zedeck synagogue, 500 South Hyde Park boulevard, conducts programs to raise funds for Israel and social action movements.

UEYers also present services for their congregation and sponsor social events.

Editor's note: The Midwest made no at-tem to learn to the activities of its foremost religious youth groups in the Midwest. They plan their projects. There may be several organizations to which U-Highers belong of which the staff is unaware.

WHILE THEIR VARIETY superiors more often receive attention, members of U-High's freshman-soph sport squads patiently work to improve their abilities for the day they, too, will step into the limelight. Top-notch freshman-soph seasons and individual victories often go unnoticed by fans whose attention varsity squads more easily win.

Freshman Ed Alpert (photos from left) works to increase his track speed in preparation for a possible varsity career; Sophomore Sherry Madawin shouts, "Dynamo, let's go," as she urges the freshman-soph eners on to victory; Sophomores Tom Neustetter and Peter Schloerb work to improve their breaststroke for the crowds at varsity competition often granted freshman and sophomore swimmers; "Are you ready? Behind Scenes Service Yields Little Glory

Team Managers Remain Forgotten Men

By Dick Dworkin

As the team huddles before a game, the coach giving final instructions to his squad, one team member remains excluded from the conference although he is considered an integral part of the team. This often-forgotten sports figure is the manager.

To the student body he is the man who takes care of little details—one junior girl said that he does the coach's dirty work—but to the coach he is more than that.

According to Mr. Norman Pounder, swim, soccer and tennis coach, "Having a mature, trustworthy manager to care for little details—one junior girl said that he does the coach's dirty work—but to the coach he is more than that.

Suppose may be in store for the U-High cagers when the Romans of Latin come south for Friday's clash at 4 p.m.

Latin lost to St. Michael earlier this year by 2 points. U-High fell to the same team by 10. These results indicate the contest will not present the Maroons with the easy win of past years.

Yesterday's encounter with rugged Chicago Christian (after deadline) should have been a sufficient warmup for Friday's game.

Next Tuesday at 3:30 p.m., Bow- en is the opponent on the U-High court. This tall public league powerhouse was 2nd in the recent tournament at Washington high school and was beaten by Chicago Vocational, one of the city's finest cage squads.

Certain underdogs, the Maroons can only hope that Bowen will suffer from overconfidence.

Friday, Jan. 27, U-High travels to Glenwood for a 4 p.m. game. This league contest should be a real thriller. Judging by the first meeting between the two teams earlier this year, final score of that December 2 was U-High, 45-Glenwood, 41. It was U-High's only victory as of deadline last Friday.

Rebuilding Shurz Will Provide Mild Challenge To Thicklads

By Dick Dworkin

What Coach Elmer Busch calls a probable victory awaits U-High's thicklads when they tangle with Shure, 4 p.m., Friday, Jan. 27, at the University Fieldhouse.

Last year, in a triangular meet, the Maroons trounced Shure 64-13. Shurz is the process of rebuilding a team that took the city chami-

Cage Intramurals To Last Season

Basketball intramurals will continue until the end of the season, according to Sponsor Tom Tourlas.

A "good number" of boys have been showing up, "mostly the senior kids, who come when they are sure of playing," he says.

Sessions take place 3:20-

4:10 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays, and 2:30-3:20 p.m. Tuesdays.

Latin Cagers Loom No Pushovers; Bowen Next For Struggling Maroons

By Ron Lessmon

Suppose may be in store for the U-High cagers when the Romans of Latin come south for Friday's clash at 4 p.m.

Latin lost to St. Michael earlier this year by 2 points. U-High fell to the same team by 10. These results indicate the contest will not present the Maroons with the easy win of past years.

Yesterday's encounter with rugged Chicago Christian (after deadline) should have been a sufficient warmup for Friday's game.

Home court advantage and an earlier trouncing of the Maroons this year, 71-40, makes the Colonels of Francis Parker overwhelming favorite in a rematch Tuesday, January 31.

The North Shore clash December 13 on the opponents' court was the Maroons' finest showing of the year, according to Coach Sandy Patlak.

The U-Highers, however, blew a 4th quarter lead and suffered a heartbreaking 42-41 defeat.

After Tough Fenger, Swimmers Meet Even Tougher Thornton, Easier Leo

By Dick Dworkin

After facing a tough Fenger squad here yesterday, U-High's swim team meets an even tougher Thornton this Friday, 3 p.m., at the opponent's pool.

U-High and Thornton haven't competed in the same dual meet since 1938, but U-High has never defeated the suburban team.

Tars varsity for the first time in more than 4 years, setting two team records.

Stan Denis erased a mark set by Alan Burns, '65 and long a dominant name in U-High swimming, topping his 53.9 100-yard freestyle mark with a 53.8.

Sophomore Peter Schloerb shattered his own 100-yard breaststroke record of 1:17.7 with a 1:11.2.

Overall varsity score was 42-32.
