Bazaarnival Innovations Will Include Prizes For Booths, 'Red Balloon' Decorations

A decorations theme, "The Red Balloon," and prizes for the most successful and original booths are among innovations for this year's Bazaarnival at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Proceeds from the combination festival and bazaar will go to a foreign student tuition aid and area charities.

Among the new attractions will be a hot lasso, paper-airplane flying contest, pickles with a fortune in them and water-balloon throwing at the Bloody Red Baron.

THE MUSIC department and Drama Workshop members will perform a 30-minute show, "For Mature Audiences Only."

Returning from previous years will be a French cafe, German Rathskeller, the Student Union maze, the Student Council coat check, "U-Highgrams," drama skits, marriage booths and Latin Club Cake Walk.

Other attractions will include two discotheques, the snack bar, helium balloons and cotton candy.

THE EVENING will begin at 9:45 p.m. with the coronation of U-High's 1967 King and Queen, elected from class candidates by Scent ocen.

Pared, the candidates are: Seniors, Carol Mann and Dan Rosenberg; juniors, Gloria Rogers and Mike Steere; sophomores, Lynne Calero and Mat Sadel; freshmen, Emily Mann and Bruce Montgomery; and freshmen, Linda Strohl and Doug Swanson.

Votes are cast for couples, not individual candidates.

STUDENTS from Francis Parker high have been extended a formal invitation to the Bazaarnival. Other guests will include the exchange students from Clayton, Mo.

Tickets, on sale before and after school and after lunch, are 50 cents.

At the door, they will be 75 cents.

Bazaarnival Cochairmen are Debbie Gross and Ed Boyer. Committee chairmen follow:

Floor plan, Frances Benham; refreshments, Steve Craig; decorations, Margie Horwich; prizes, Glenn McDavid; publicity, Jennie Zesmer; and tickets, Audrey Kavka.

Ellen Beigler designed the posters which announced Bazaarnival through the community.

JUNIORS, sophomores and freshmen who wish to serve on the 1968 yearbook staff must attend a seminar, 2:30-4:15 p.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday in Belfield 104, April 27-29, announces 97 Editor Ellen Jarrow. The new staff will be selected afterward.

AMERICAN Medalist society issues from Director Francis V. Lloyd Jr.'s collection are being exhibited in the 1st-floor showcase. The medals, two of which Society members have received each year since 1950, include a presidential inaugural issue and Churchill Crown special. Thera also is a m e d a l commemorating Charles Lindbergh's solo flight across the Atlantic.

SUN-TIMES sponsored here Saturday a seminar for area teachers on using the newspaper in the classroom. Speakers included Mr. Lloyd, Editorial Cartoonist Bill Mauldin.

PARENTS have been notified that high school tuition next year will be $1,200.

OCHER has accepted an invitation to give a concert Wednesday at General Woods boys club.

STUDENT COUNCIL has given the Midway $200 to relieve financial pressure upon required by Business Manager Ted Borstein.

Even Top Ten Can't Explain Popularity

What makes a person popular? The way he walks, talks, or dress? A long list of school activities and offices? Friendliness to all classmates, not just his friends?

Pressed for an answer, even U-High's 10 most popular students for 1967 can't offer a magic formula.

Elected by their classmates, the "top 10" — a boy and girl from each class (two from the freshman class because of ties) — will be candidates for King and Queen at Bazaarnival Saturday.

ALTHOUGH THEY appreciate the honor, the candidates sincerely assert (as have their predecessors) that they do not know why they, rather than someone else, were singled out.

Freshman Doug Swanson, a member of the swim and soccer teams and Student Council, speculated he was chosen because he is "friendly with everybody, I like everybody."

Freshman Emily Mann, who participates in Internation Simulation, Student Union and Drama Workshops, said she and her sister, Senior Carol Mann, may have been chosen because they were "new faces." They came here this year from Massachusetts.
New Rules Seek To End Plagiarism Incidents

To eliminate plagiarism by educational institutions, federal and state government, and many Individuals, a new set of rules are being proposed. These rules will help to prevent plagiarism and its associated penalties.

The rules for University identification cards and ticket-holders are scheduled for approval during the Spring semester. According to the guidelines, penalties for plagiarism, both by students and faculty, will be enforced.

Clayton Here This Week

U-Highers Find Exchange School Friendly

Since the last exchange school visit by U-High students, there has been much activity on the Clayton High School campus.

The first exchange school visit was made by students from Clayton High School. Since then,
U-High students have visited Clayton High School on a regular basis.

Clayton is located in the Midwestern region of the United States. The school is renowned for its academic success and athletic programs.

On this visit, the U-High students were welcomed by the Clayton High School administration.

The students had an opportunity to meet with students from both schools and attend classes.

The visit was enjoyed by both schools, and it is anticipated that future exchange visits will be held regularly.

Police Sup't. Approves 'Dig'

Every morning this year at 8, Ellen Beigler has been dropping her younger brother at Francis Parker high before taking to the Outro Drive and heading for U-High.

A few months ago she began noticing a gentleman who dropped his daughter off at the same time and proceeded to take the same route down the Drive. The man looked familiar, but she couldn't place him.

Then one day she suddenly recognized him as Orlando Wilson, Chicago's police superintendent.

When Sup't. Wilson began greeting her, she was so delighted she made a large sign reading, "I Dig Orlando!" a Daily Newsprint.

Finally, when the chief's limousine pulled up beside her at a light, she realized the gentleman had pulled out the sign. The chief handed his card back and broke out laughing.

Ellen feels she had done her bit to promote happier law enforcers.

Editor's note: As citizens and students of Clayton High School, we are pleased to report that the police superintendent has been welcomed by the community.

Mr. Charles Saltzman,
director of the school,

the school.

Mr. Saltzman said he under his administration the ment of a full-professional staff.

“A good student leader must be respected and possess a genuine interest in the opinion while not letting himself be dominated by others,” one prominent student predicated from a single group, agree Student Council President David Rosenthal and Vice President Ann Rosenberg. As they surveyed their impressions and experiences so far this year.

“One of the most important, but least appreciated things that the Council has done is to put itself in the role of a true student Council in this school on a firm financial basis,” David Rosenthal was evaluating his accomplishments.

Jr. To Represent School in Contest

Senior Naava Binder has been selected to represent U-High in the National Tournament of English (NCTE) contest, according to the school’s English teacher.

Determined to test student ability to think, write and speak effectively, the contest requires a paper the student has written and an autobiography and a written and oral essay. The results go on the student’s permanent record.

In addition, the contest requires the student to take a test, which is voluntary, in the student Council and the student Council on a firm financial basis.

Jazz Band Seeks Festival Honors

“U-High’s got as good a chance as anyone to win an award,” says Jazz Band Director Dean Hey of the music competition in which his band will compete April 23 at Mundelein high school.

Nationally, the contest is open to bands who help or hurt a band’s chances is rehearsal time, and the director says what he adds.

The band will play three selections: “Pickwick” by William Russo, “Fast Company” by Ernie White, and “Wall of the Prophets” by Dee Barton.

Carl Becker, Roy Finkel and Mary Scramont and 4th year, Jane Taylor, David, Victoria and Jane made the top scores in their divisions.

U-High Journalists Win Nat’l Awards

Winners in a national writing contest sponsored by Quill and Scroll, an international honor society for high school journalists, Judy Kahn and Bobbie Green will receive recognition at the honors assembly in May.

As a senior, Judy addititionally is eligible to apply for a $500 journalism scholarship to the school of her choice.

Judy’s award was for an editorial, “Ambition: U-High Outscores $20 Activities Fee” in the Oct. 18, 1966, issue. Bobbie, a junior, won for an essay, “She Tells Negro, White Teens of Each Other, in the November issue. Judy is editor in chief of the Midway and Bobbie a reporter and ad solicitor.

This is the second consecutive year the Midway essay entered the contest and won two awards.

The ones we did get well, however, we did get, however, we were pleased to see many of them, people who said that they didn’t like to sit at parties, so our Fall Social had a game room instead. Some people wanted a disk jockey instead of band. So we tried one at one of our parties.

“This spring we’re trying two new ideas, a computer party and a sports party,” Ann said. We also had the conviction that the Student Union was not run by an ‘in’ group.

“The representatives are all different types of people,” she said. “There is no ‘in’ group.”

Both David and Ann have suggestions to offer their successors.

“ALWAYS ask yourself if the Union is fulfilling the purpose for which it was created,” Ann said, “to provide recreational entertainment for the students. If not, test it.”

“The President must have a firm opinion of his own,” David added, “and stick to it.”

SURROUNDED by IBM computers, Student Union President Ann Rosenberger, center, plans the May 21 computer party with Cochairmen Linda Baskind and John Colburn.

“Decorations will be limited because the theme is no theme,” Ann says.

Discussion at a March 1 Student Union forum influenced choice of the theme. Students from Francis Parker, Harvard-St. George and Latin may be invited to the matching party.

Show Biz Paper Spotlights Computer Club T.V. Survey

U-High’s computer club and its recent television program survey were spotlighted in a feature story in the March 22 edition of Variety, a weekly newspaper for the entertainment business.

The story recounted the club’s findings that U-Highers prefer acoustic programs and compared them to the Nielsen survey which rate situation comedies the favorite of Chicago teenage viewers.

“FOR INSTANCE,” Variety pointed out, “the Nielsen team overwhelmingly picked ‘The Mon­ keys’ for their favorites, but on the Lab School list the show was seventh. For their favorite, the U. C. yuvas gave ‘I Spy’ the top spot, but the same show ranked only 15th in the general kid community.

“The choices varied even more widely from one survey to another. As a matter of fact, the top 10 picks of the samples were totally dissimilar.”

Lollipop Profits Will Buy Present For Foster Child

To buy a Christmas present for U-High’s 14-year-old Vietnamese foster child, Tran A Mui, foster child committee is selling lollipop pops through Friday.

The pops sell for 50 cents each, according to Chairman Margare­ ret Conomos, and the committee hopes to equal last year’s profits of about $800.

Tran A Mui receives each month from the committee 88 for clothing and medicine. She adds this grant to the 16 cents she earns each day cutting the uppers of rubber slip­ on shoes, according to a January, 1965, ease history from the Foster Par­ ents’ Newsletter.

In addition to working, Tran A Mui takes care of her family’s home and a small school. Her two younger brothers help her all they can, even when they are not free from tuberculosis, cannot work. Her father is dead.

IN ADDITION to its press notice, the club also gained attention from a major network because of its survey.

After Club President Scott Gurry wrote NBC, informing the net­ work that five of its shows had made U-High’s “Top 10,” the club’s officers and sponsor, Mr. Frank Tirro, were invited to tour NBC’s Chicago studios March 16 and have lunch with the station manager, director of public relations and members of the advertising and news departments.

Director’s Book Tells of Teaching

To give prospective elementary school teachers a picture of such a career, Lab Schools Director Francis V. Lloyd Jr. wrote “For­ ward To Teaching,” a book published February 16 by Little, Brown and company.

Based largely on Mr. Lloyd’s own teaching experiences, the book also draws on taped inter­ views with teachers by Nursery School Principal Philip Jackson. Letters from Lab School teachers about their experiences also were used.

Teachers Hear Longer School Year Proposed

A longer school year was recom­ mended by Dr. W. Bentley Glass, academic vice president and pro­ fessor of biology at the University of New York, at a National Science Teachers Association conference March 22 in Detroit attended by six U-High teachers.

Because of the increased knowledge necessary to understand science today, the longer year is needed to provide sufficient in­ struction and study time for stu­ dents, Dr. Glass believes.

U-High teachers at the confer­ ence were Miss I11 Poledendorf, Mr. Jan Kowsong, Mr. Ernest Pohl, Miss Miriam Allen, Mrs. Monica Onorak and Miss Judith Verteen.

Thoughtless U-Highers Risk Loss of Dormitory Privileges

U-Highers are in danger of losing New Dorms cafeteria as an off-campus lunch spot. Complaints by the cafeteria supervisors indicate that unless behavior improves, U-Highers will not be allowed on the premises.

When U-Highers first received off-campus lunch last year, they were welcomed and the cafeteria was crowded with students and the Dorms. Because of card playing, littering and unruly behavior they were banned from the cafeteria. Another attempt to sell the lunch to the students of the new dorms was made last year. Now permit U-Highers (except freshmen) during lunch periods.

Before spring vacation, Principal Philip Montag and Dean of Stu­dents John Thompson held a meeting at the Dorms. Only a handful of students had shown up to hear Mr. Thompson relay the rules and regulations. U-Highers were charged with insolvency to personnel, starting french fry fights, placing their feet on tables, playing cards and leaving trash.

The Dorms’ administrators also claimed that U-Highers were som­mitizing the cafeteria, primarily provided for University students and staff.

Even the University student paper, the Maroon, criticized U-High’s “chitinous” for filling New Dorms cafeteria. Warm weather has brought U-Highers to the lawns around the Dorms for lunch—they have been hounded from the lounges downstairs. Already trash has been thrown on the campus picks the conscientious student leaders. Unless U-Highers are more considerate, it’s matter of time before the cafeteria supervisors stop keeping an eye on them, and finally lower the boom again: U-Highers even on Dorm grounds.

U-Highers, who demand more freedoms yet repeatedly de­scribe they can’t handle the freedoms they do have. Unless they begin to show some common sense and courtesy, they will lose all special privileges. They will have only themselves to blame.

Teacher’s Work Lives On

It is a rare teacher who makes a lasting impression on his students and his specialty is in the middle mark on the study sheet. Such a teacher was Dale Calvin, who died March 28.

Mr. Phillips, who was Director of Field Services at the Lab Schools since 1964 and for more than 30 years before that a teacher of social studies and math. It was through his efforts that, for the past 15 years, 6th-graders have had a 1-week experience in rural living at Camp Farr.

Despite a physical handicap resulting from a hip injury as a young man, Mr. Phillips uncomplainingly went about his work. The handicap grew worse as he grew older, but his determination to be at school every day never lessened. Camp Farr was a haven for Mr. Phillips, who would have been 65 April 1, planned on retiring this year. His death was the result of: a) A cerebrovascular disorder.

Adrienne Rubin, who had as a teacher, remembers Mr. Phillips for “giving us the full benefits of his years of experience.”

Mr. Phillips was a member of the Class of 1940 and remembers his 15th-grade social studies teacher fondly as “a man who made us what we were studying come alive.”

School Hostess Muriel Robin reports that alumni who attended school, many of them successful teachers and administrators, were amazed that Mr. Phillips remembered their names.

Plans are being made to establish a scholarship, to be named in memory of Mr. Phillips to help students who otherwise could not afford the ex­ pense to go to Camp Farr. It would be a fitting tribute to a man whose teaching career was delayed because he had to work to support his family while getting an education. He never regretted that sacrifice.

Seniors Can Vent Irks At Bazaar-Town Booth

By Manon Selk

Bleary-eyed seniors will have reason Saturday to let loose at the “Senior fruition booth” at Bazaar-Town. Pops, pins, pinballs and smashing things will begin to vent the tension that builds as seniors await their formal college accept­ance letters.

Though even some seniors privately describe their class as a dud group, a closer look reveals several accomplishments.

THE CLASS of 67 changed the school dress code, raised the Ac­tivities fee, started plans for a senior lounge (more about that in a minute) proposed doing away with senior finals, saw the establish­ment of student-faculty forums and finally severed membership with the crippled Interschool Relations League.

SPONTANEOUS idiocy started April 6 as two seniors walked down the hall with no place to go. And then there were four and then a crowd. They sat down and started a senior lounge.

In 40 minutes there was a sign marking their turf. And past here, no one, teachers, included, dared trespass. To reinforce courses and curfews courses were set up with masking tape for a form.

The class mascot, a lemon, and signs, “Senior Lounge” and “Be­ware, seniors,” adorned the walls.

TO CELEBRATE their victory, the seniors formed a living pyra­mid to the ceiling. It fell in a clump of Chevron and shook when it attempted to move.

The "lounge" dotted around school all day and finally settled in the room which officially be­longs to teachers on the first floor.

Class representatives planned to meet Monday with Principal Phillip Montag to plan an official lounge.

Teen’s Song Combines Hard Rock, Witty Lyrics

By Rick Fisher

Very few of the Rolling Stones' rock hits, 45s or albums have failed to become million sellers. Their two latest albums, "Got Live If You Want It" (London 3490) and "50 Greats" (London 3490 mono and 495 stereo) have no exceptions.

The Stones, who are popularly known as blues-rock music combine driving dance beats and elements of rock with added pungency to the soul. One of their new albums is comprised of hard, loud, blaring rock and roll. The other album contains witty, original, effective songs.

"Got Live If You Want It" was recorded as a concert in Royal Albert Hall, London, England. "I have the double­dience of wild, screaming teen­agers adds much to the excitement of the album.

But the recording doesn’t have the same intensity. It’s been rehearsed and technically-manipulated to suit the performance. Mick Jagger’s voice comes out unusually well, but all the instruments: ex­cept for the drums, come out faint, distant and indistinct.

This poor quality is the result of the Stones not using all the instru­ments and props available in a studio, and makingNHMAWLY's K"Sain or Satisfaction' and "19th Nervous Sys­tem." Thoughts of these songs were expressed in Seth Phelps' "The Bri­liss...rammel and David Yngve_...

"If I get tired of it, I'll start the long, painful process of growing it again." According to the leading hair stylists, short hair is in vogue now, McCall's magazine reports.

Summer Jobs For U-Highers Scarce Despite Project, Labor Shortage

By Judy Kahn
Without faculty help, a group of U-High drama enthusiasts are preparing for a June 9-10 production of "The Glass Menagerie" by Tennessee Williams.
Producer-director Barry Levine, a senior, chose the play because he admires William's work.
THE SENSITIVE story, based loosely on Williams' life as a young man in St. Louis, centers on Tom, who yearns to get away from home but feels duty-bound to remain; Laura, his crippled and painfully shy sister; and Amanda, their doting, alcoholic mother who constantly dreams of her supposed youth as a Southern belle and bemoans the husband who deserted her.
"The Glass Menagerie" is a vital play that has great attraction to youth of our time," Barry says.

He feels that the large turnout for roles reflects U-High's appreciation for modern tragedy. Theater of the absurd has dominated the school's drama this year and last.
Barry, who belongs to Actors Equity and the Screen Actors Guild, has appeared at the Drury Lane theater and, when he was 18, on a television production of "A Streetcar Named Desire."
JUNIOR Kathy Sloane, who plays Amanda, is performing in her first major production.
"I play a glibby woman who has long speeches," she says. "When a player gets to talk it never fails to show emotions," Kathy feels.
"Laura, Amanda's crippled daughter, is my role," she explains, "because she has to show her feelings with her actions," she adds.
Kathy will have to speak with a Southern accent, a task which she finds hard to do.
Because she plans to major in drama or English, Kathy is especially excited about her first big role.

'S6 Graduate Helps Teach Course On Middle East

By Debbie Gross
An interest in social science and teaching has brought Alumnus Jerry Hirsch, '66, back to U-High, to teach a social science course.
Jerry's assignment is part of a work-study program at Antioch college, where he is a student 6 months of the year and gets actual experience in the other.
DRAWING from his year in Israel as a junior, Jerry will assist Mrs. Pallor with a spring quarter unit on that country.
Jerry is not disturbed that he is teaching former classmates.
"What makes a good teacher is the same whether you know the kids or not," he asserts.
THIS SUMMER Jerry will act as tutor and community organizer with the Delta Ministry in Minneapolis under the auspices of the National Council of Churches.
Jeff Stern, '66 and editor of last year's Midway, has been elected to the 1967 editorial board of the Yale News. He joined the paper in December and was among nine of 36 freshmen to win positions on the board, named for the class' year of graduation.

Senior Travel Around Globe Via International Pen-Pals

By Edith Schramm
Without ever leaving her home, Senior Judy Kahn has visited Italy, England, South Africa and Germany. She has never left her own campus, but she's seen them through the eyes of her many pen-pals.
"I wanted to travel," Judy explains, "but I couldn't, so I decided to write instead."
Judy met most of her pen-pals when they were exchange students here, through friends and by the computer at the New York World's Fair. It matched up pen-pals, supposedly according to similar interests.
JUDY RELATES a humorous story about one of the computer matches.
"I asked for a person 16 to 18 years old and said I could correspond in French. About 3 months later I received a letter from a 20-year-old in the Dutch Army stationed in Surinam, South America.
"After he got out of the Army," she continues, "he traveled around the world and sent me letters from the places he visited."
Letter writing is not the only means of communication Judy uses in her "travels."
"I CORRESPOND with an English boy with tape," she says. "On the tapes he reads to me, plays piano duets and explains English and Welsh."
"The G UN, one of her pen-pals, was a big star in school in Argentina and Germany. His band plays the violin and he has bigger dimensions than anyone."
"He also sends me things such as camera slides, a scrap and tapes of the Beatles when they first became popular in America."
Politics and school life are the subjects Judy and her pen-pals talk about most frequently. She receives newspapers from her correspondents. They keep her informed about the political structure and laws of various countries.
"MY ITALIAN pen-pal," Judy relates, "attended Communist meetings and told me what they were like."
Most of Judy's pen-pals attend colleges or universities.
"But when I met all of my pen-pals invite her to their homes, she would like to visit them in person."
For now, however, she's content with being a mailbox traveler.
Next year's juniors and seniors will have been astonished by the three quarters of physical education offered at the school. According to Mr. William Zarvis, department chairman, students also will be able to choose courses more freely and take the courses they want according to their personal interest. THE PHYSICAL Education department feels that juniors and seniors should have a little more say about the courses they take," Mr. Zarvis explained.

"This is a new approach to scheduling P.E. here should make greater selections possible for each student." A student may decide, under the new plan, to take all three quarters in one year or distribute them over his junior and senior years. Where half class space permits, students will be permitted to take extra quarters of gym.

"And CHANGE for a student to get more course choice and the unit he wants will be increased with the addition of bi-quarter physical education classes." The program is not completely elective," warns Mr. Zarvis. The degree of choice still will depend on how dexterously students apply for certain activities. They should take into account the popularity of the sport involved, class space, and how well the student is doing in the course. Most of this year's courses will be continued next season. Skiing and hockey will be continued next season because of the growing popularity, he concluded.

But Uniformly Hopeful

Outlook For Spring Sports

By Dick Dworkin

Though the outlook for U-High's spring sports—tennis, baseball, golf and girls' volleyball—looks hopeful, their schedules, strengths and problems are reasonably well established.

In tennis, Junior John Wachtel and Ron Greenwald will take on the task of filling the shoes of seniors Charles Dole and Harry Chartoff. Thompson and Chartoff, who graduated last year, were PSL 1st and 2nd singles champions for two consecutive years.

THE DOUBLES team and newly-created 3rd-3rd singles post will be problems for a crop of other seniors.

Mr. Flynn will not walk away with the Independent School League crown as they did with the old PSL title the past 3 years. They nevertheless should have an interesting try at the first place spot. A WEAK ELGIN squad will provide competition in the squad's first meet of the year, 3:30 p.m., Friday, here.

Other upcoming meets are with Morgan Park, a newcomer to both the ISL and the U-High schedule, 2:30 p.m., Tuesday; Francis Parker, only PSL team to beat the Maroons last year, 3:30 p.m., Friday, April 21 here; and sometimes tough North Shore, 3:30 p.m., Tuesday, Apr. 25, there.

GOLF TEAM lost virtually no leaders in graduation this year, but will be ready for the advantage in '68. The squad is composed entirely of seniors. Only underclassman with a chance to break senior dominance is Freshman Mark Zuspan, Morgan Park academy, last year's PSL champ, has its entire team back this year. Their experience and depth should bring the ISL crown, with U-High running 2nd.

Maroon golfers begin their season Tuesday here against Francis Parkers.

BASEBALL TEAM played its first game April 4 at North Park with only three seniors in the starting lineup. Virtually the entire 1968 championship team was lost to graduation, leaving this year's varsity with little hitting or pitching power.

Catcher Steve Weitman thinks the team "could do fairly well if we get some hitting and some relief pitching behind Dave Jacoby." A sophomore, Jacoby is the only Maroon hurler with experience.

PENN-STATESHOPI ball team will be built around a nucleus of two or three experienced sophomores.

With almost a full squad back this year, the girls' volleyball team should fare well in its three or four game schedule, believes Coach Margaret Mates.

Practice Soccer All Year, Advises Faculty Enthusiast

By Dick Dworkin

"U-High boys really interested in soccer are fortunate because soccer should play throughout the year," advises U-High French Teacher Michael Flynn, a semi-professional soccer player born in England, where soccer is the national sport.

Mr. Flynn was awarded on the Creighton team at the Army's on Chicago avenue, says he likes soccer because "it has something in it for everybody. You don't have to be a physical phenomenon to be good in it, as you do in basketball or football."

MR. FLYNN, who is 5 feet, 6 inches tall, adds that lack of height is no deterrent to being an able player.

"Soccer more interesting than football or baseball, "Mr. Flynn feels. "Unlike baseball, there's always something happening in soccer," he says.

Popularity of baseball and football here rather than soccer, he believes, can be traced to the first European settlers in America wanting to cut off all ties with their old life. They emphasized "American" sports such as baseball and football rather than European soccer.

Mr. Flynn adds that the amateur standing of the sport in this country has discouraged its development. Professional soccer teams which plan to become popular this summer, however, may remedy the situation, he says.
